

Senior Sea Fisheries Officer – Department of Environment, Food & Agriculture, Isle of Man Government

*Permanent, 37 hours per week
Salary: Pay Band 19 £34,738 - £40,574 per annum
Job reference: DOEF-004834*

An exceptional opportunity has arisen for a suitably qualified individual to head up the Isle of Man's sea fisheries enforcement team.

The Fisheries Directorate of DEFA is responsible for the management and protection of fisheries and their supporting ecosystems within the Isle of Man and its territorial sea.

The Senior Sea Fisheries Officer has responsibility for leading a team in the effective enforcement of sea fisheries legislation within the territorial sea and ashore and taking command of the Department's fisheries patrol vessel.

The role requires the post holder to hold valid certificates of competency appropriate to the sea-going role and practical experience of commanding a vessel at sea, along with proven experience in a relevant enforcement role. The post holder will be required to pass a seafarer's medical.

More details of the duties of the post can be obtained from Karen McHarg on 01624 686044 or Colin Eastwood on 01624 685842.

Please note a full, valid driving licence and access to own transport are essential for the post.

The Isle of Man is a self-governing dependency within the British Isles. The post holder will enjoy the benefits of low income tax and a low crime rate. Other advantages include good sea and air links, excellent quality of individual and family life, superb scenery and excellent leisure facilities.
